Synthetic studies toward the anticancer agent nudiline and its analogues. A concise approach for the construction of the annelated and annulated tetracyclic scaffolds of nudiline is described. The key features of the scheme include a three-component coupling of a 1,4-dihydro-3-benzoxepin core with an aldehyde, an acid and an alpha,beta-unsaturated lactone followed by Dess-Martin oxidation, epoxide opening, and a Hofmann rearrangement. The use of organometallic reagents for Suzuki cross-couplings enabled the expedient synthesis of (+)-nudiline in 7 steps with a 56% overall yield. I have read that it is a fairly large server based OS. Can anyone advise as to how much performance gain would be from moving to Sharepoint 2013? Or is it purely a matter of which version? For example if I did a project for the sharepoint 2010 server how much performance gain would I get from moving it to 2013? I know Sharepoint 2013 is still in preview but I assume that is the answer to my question? The end product for me is that I get more benefits from moving to 2013 (over 2010) because of the consolidation. The other point is that I get benefits from the new release which will better support WebMatrix2 and SharePoint Designer. Anyhow, if you have your projects already you can migrate them to 2013 and get the benefits from the consolidation.
